House Group
Votes to Extend
Doctor Draft

Bill Also Provides Scholarships
For Limited Number

WASHINGTON — The House Armed Services committee voted, 27-5, today to approve a two-year extension of the doctor draft law until July 1, 1957.

The bill also provides for federal scholarships for a limited number of medical and dental students.

It also continues the $100 a month extra pay for doctors, dentists and veterinarians who take commissions in the armed services whether as volunteers or draftees.

The scholarship plan—a new provision—would pay the medical or dental school costs of about 300 physicians and 126 dentists who would agree to go on active duty for five years after graduation.

The administration had asked that four years of active duty be required for any man getting a scholarship for more than one year. The committee, on a motion by Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.), increased the active duty period to five years. The action was by voice vote.

The committee voted to limit the number of scholarships to about 5 per cent of the total number of medical and dental school graduates.

Other congressional news:

Conference: Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) said he was "more optimistic" about chances of peace in the Far East after a 90-minute briefing on the foreign situation by President Eisenhower and others at the White House. Johnson was 1 of 28 congressional leaders of both parties at the conference.

Farm: Opposite sides in the price support controversy threw some fairly vigorous words at each other. Rep. Harold D. Cooley (D-N.C.), leading a fight to restore rigid high supports on basic crops, accused the administration of "wicked and wanton" and "cruel treatment" of farmers. Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends (Ill.) denounced the Democratic drive to scrap the administration's flexible support system as a "despicable political maneuver."

United Nations: Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U. S. delegate to the U. N., said the power to veto admittance of new members should be abolished. Lodge told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that "it is outrageous" for Russia to keep countries like Italy and Japan out of the United Nations. The committee is studying possible revision of the U. N. charter.

Charge: Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.) accused the Internal Revenue Service of punishing an employee for cooperating with him. He identified the employee as Mrs. Louise Affolter of the Pittsburgh office. He said she was given a dismissal notice eight days after he talked to her on June 17, 1953. When he protested, she was reinstated, he said. Later, she resigned but learned her civil service file had been "flagged" to prevent her re-employment if she should ever try to land another federal job. Williams has exposed many irregularities that occurred in the service during the Truman administration.

Tells of Mission
Work in Liberia
In Rotary Address

Mrs. P. W. Davis, returned missionary from Liberia, Africa, was guest speaker at the Rotary club's noon luncheon meeting yesterday. Martha Beckwith, a native of Liberia and presently a student in the local Junior high, was a special guest.

Mrs. Davis was introduced by Louie Beltz. She spoke about the mission work of Rev. Davis and herself in the jungles of Liberia. The Davises spent approximately 14 years in that country, helping to establish mission stations, schools and churches.

"Liberia has 21 different tribes, each speaking a different dialect," the speaker said. "The people are eager to learn and pick up the English language quickly."

There is a great need for industrial schools, Mrs. Davis related, and one has been established where she was working during the past year.

Some of the customs of the natives were also brought out during a question and answer session. Miss Beckwith sang a number in her native tribal dialect. Mr. Beltz, in introducing her, spoke highly of her gracious manners and appreciativeness as observed by school teachers.

Luther Raley, Polo, Ill., was a guest of the club.

Russia Demands
Refugees in Austrian Talks

VIENNA, Austria — Russia demanded today the Austrian state treaty contain controversial "Article 16" which would permit the Communists to retake some 36,000 Iron Curtain refugees in Austria.

Thousands of refugees risked their lives to escape to freedom in Austria — Russians, Hungarians, Poles, Czechs, Romanians, stateless Jews and Yugoslavs. Some have threatened suicide if the dread Article 16 is approved in the treaty.

The Russians want a clause in the treaty allowing Communist "interviewers" to visit Austrian refugee camps and arrange wholesale deportation of men, women and children back to the Communist nations from which they fled.

Has 59 Articles

The United States is dead set against the article and informed sources said it was likely to be one of the thorniest points of East-West dispute at the treaty conference which opened here Monday with Big Four envoys and the Austrian foreign minister present.

The envoys, who announced in a communique they made "notable progress" at the first session, were reported to have approved 15 treaty articles at their first session including one providing for Austria's re-establishment as a "sovereign, independent and democratic state."

The draft treaty, ending ten years of occupation and restoring Austria's freedom for the first time since it was absorbed by Hitlerite Germany in 1938, has 59 articles. The controversial 16th article was to be discussed first at today's meeting.

The couple, Charles Ferri and his wife, disappeared mysteriously from their fashionable home which was found deserted and smeared with bloodstains.

Pools of human blood in the $40,000 home provided the only clue to their disappearance.

"We cannot even call it murder until we find some bodies," said Deputy Sheriff John Tyler.

He said no trace of the retired plumbing contractor and his wife had yet been found in the exclusive North Miami residential section facing Biscayne Bay.

Plans were made to drag canals and water filled rockpits in the area near the couple's home.

Ferri had recently been served with a subpoena to appear at the second tax evasion trial of Anastasia.

Ferri, 68, and his wife, 61, had lived quietly here. Investigators said neighbors had noticed no disturbance. They were last seen alive when they visited their daughter's home a few blocks away last Friday night.

The government called the $11,742 tax case against the reputed former top triggermen for Murder, Inc., one of the most important cases in the Justice Department files today.

But police indicated uncertainty as to whether Ferri's role as one of some 100 witnesses under subpoena for the May 10 trial warrant linked the cases.

The Ferris had moved here a year and a half ago from Ft. Lee, N. J., after Ferri had testified in 1954 at the first trial of the tax case, which then ended in a mistrial.

Advance Bill to

Republicans
Beat Down Demo
Amendment Attempt

SPRINGFIELD — The key bill to allow the attorney general, on orders of the governor, to conduct local criminal investigations and prosecutions, today moved to passage stage in the Illinois Senate.

Republicans beat down a Democratic attempt to amend the measure.

Sen. Roland V. Libonati (D-Chicago) offered an amendment which would have required the attorney general to get permission of the Supreme Court before entering into local crime affairs, and permitted five per cent of the voters in any county to petition to bar the attorney general's entrance into county affairs.

The bill five weeks ago was voted out of the Senate Judiciary Committee on a motion by the Democrats. The motion was a parliamentary maneuver to keep the Republicans from using the committee hearings to get access to Chicago City Council Crime Commission data. The Republicans were anxious to get the data before the Chicago elections.

Sen. T. Mac Downing (R-Macomb), who is chairman of the judiciary committee, chided the Democrats about their motion favoring the bill as contrasted to their amendment attempts today.

"We were led to believe this bill was satisfactory," he said. "I am just a little surprised that the Democrats brought in this amendment destined to kill the bill."

"This is the first time I ever heard of a bill dying from improvements," Libonati replied.

Libonati's amendment was beaten on a party line vote 31-18.

Korean Bonus
Bill Advances

SPRINGFIELD — A 150-million-dollar Korean veterans bonus bill, sponsored by more than half the Illinois House, today was advanced to passage stage.

The bill was called at the amendment stage today. Rep. George W. Dunn (D-Chicago) tried to amend the bill to limit the bonus to those who served "in the Korean theatre as defined by the U. S. Department of Defense."

Dunn's amendment was tabled 85-19 by a standing vote.

Rep. Clyde L. Choate (D-Anna), leading sponsor of the bonus bill, said servicemen had no "say-so" over where they were sent and all should be compensated for Korean wartime service.

Dunn said service men in America and Europe in many cases got advantages they wouldn't even have gotten in civilian life.

The bonus would pay Korean veterans $10 for each month of domestic service and $15 for each month of foreign service between July 26, 1950, and July 26, 1953.

The bonus would be financed by a bond issue to be paid off from Illinois harness racing pari-mutuel and alcoholic liquor taxes.

NATIONAL YOUTH DAY OBSERVANCES by Harrisburg Lodge 1058, B. P. O. Elks, in cooperation with Turner-Farrar theatres, brought this long line of junior high students to the Grand theatre yesterday morning. Following the invocation by Rev. W. L. Cummins, exalted ruler Charlie Skagas welcomed the students, explained briefly the idea behind National Youth Day, and then introduced past exalted ruler W. W. Damron, who addressed a few brief remarks to the group. A patriotic film was then shown. This was the first major observance of Youth Day, a national Elks custom since 1950, by the local lodge, and was very well received by the students.

Grief-Stricken Father of Son Slain by
Teen-Age Hoodlum Hits Big City Apathy

TAMAQUA, Pa. — A New York family "crushed by the brutality of a big city" came to this rural community today to bury the body of their murdered son in the "clean earth of the Poconos."

The grief-stricken family of William Blankenship Jr., slain Saturday night by a teen-aged hoodlum in the Bronx, arrived here this morning by auto from New York.

Funeral Director Conrad B. Zizelmann will take charge of their son's body at the Lehigh Valley station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. He will take it to the Zizelmann Funeral Home in Tamaqua.

Traveling with the slain boy's parents were their other children, Douglas 18, a paratrooper stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., Randolph, 11, and Carey, 6.

More than a hundred friends, schoolmates and teachers of the boy crowded into the small room in the Walter B. Cooke Funeral Home to attend funeral rites conducted by Rev. R. Millard Farrell.

His hands clasped peacefully on his breast. His eyes no longer beheld the horror of Saturday night when he and a friend were surrounded by a teen-age gang led by Frank (Tarzan) Santana.

Billy's father, William Blankenship Sr., a research chemist and president of the Bronxwood Advisory Council, made the decision to take his family out of the city. He said, "teenage hoodlumism is the outward sign that everything here is rotten... it has finally got me licked. I'm getting out."

The senior Blankenship's civic organization had sought to combat New York's rising juvenile hoodlumism.

Santana Loses Bravado

Rev. Charles J. Mathias, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church will conduct final funeral services for Billy at Tamaqua Wednesday. He will be buried in Sky View Memorial Park, about two miles outside Tamaqua where he was born and spent several happy vacations.

Santana was arraigned Monday along with Ralph (Rocky) Falcon, 16. He is being held without bail. Santana is being held in $50,000 bail.

The two had lost the bravado they displayed at the time of their arrest when they appeared before Magistrate Hyman Korn Monday.

Judge Korn blamed the "apathy of the people of this city" for the crime. "Until they wake up the situation will continue," he said.

Dist. Atty. Daniel V. Sullivan said he would seek a first-degree murder indictment against Santana.

100 women at 6:30. "In no service on that day the world over could there have been lovelier singing."

Said Mrs. Baker, "than what I heard in the Fiji Islands. The resonant harmony of 200 bushy-haired Christian women in the large Methodist church that afternoon was something to be remembered."

In Djakarta, Indonesia, it was not the sari of Miss Sunderland, but the queer hats and white faces of the American women that excited notice. In services here and in India Miss Sunderland could sing and speak in her native language.

Miss Baker will report on their tour at the state meeting at Kewanee May 11 and 12.

The question of vital concern in each community at the present time is the breakdown in the American home. The speaker of this fellowship meeting, Elder T. Leo Dodd, was principal of the Eldorado Township high school for many years. He is the father of a family, a civic minded citizen and an active minister. His background insures a worthwhile message on the Christian family.

Nationally united church women foster projects of good will to promote fellowship in the world family. This year a team of four women was sent to nine countries to confer with united church women of those countries. The team was made up of the president of the organization in the United States and the editor of the magazine "Church Woman." They were joined by an attorney and church leader of the Philippines, Miss Josephina Phodaca, and Miss Felicia Sunderland of India.

Their itinerary included islands and countries of Southeast Asia, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon and Germany. In Australia they discussed local problems of how the country was assimilating 70,000 aborigines. Melbourne women were greatly concerned as to how the women of the United States had fared.

Earlier in the day at Springfield, Dirksen had announced the Senate Interior Affairs committee had approved a bill for a million dollars to resume the Crab Orchard-Devil's Kitchen Dam project. This project was started under a previous administration but not finished. When the House again failed to include the project in its appropriations, the Illinois Republican said he and Clements sponsored an amendment for the million dollar grant.

Dirksen said if Congress approves the appropriation for the coal research plant its construction would begin at once. He said it would use the Harman process for coal distillation, reducing the coal to a tar or heavy oil.

He said this tar might be used in manufacturing "a host of things, such as detergents and pharmaceuticals." The char left, about 1,400 pounds of a ton of coal, might be used to fuse low grade iron ores, he said.

The burglars took out a door glass and opened the door to gain entrance. Inside, they tore open a pay telephone and tried to pry open a cigarette vending machine coin box but were unsuccessful in getting money in both attempts.

The Texaco service station at Routes 45 and 142 south of Eldorado was entered last night by burglars who did some damage but got nothing, Sheriff William T. Barrett said today.

The burglars entered the station at about 11 p. m. and tried to pry open a pay telephone and tried to pry open a cigarette vending machine coin box but were unsuccessful in getting money in both attempts.

Dulles Reports On
Latest Developments
In Far East, Europe

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower apparently sold congressional leaders today on the need for continuing foreign aid but got no promises as to the amount.

The President briefed Democratic and Republican congressional leaders for 90 minutes on the $3,530,000,000 foreign aid program for the coming year. He had called them to a bipartisan White House conference to express his "deep personal concern" about the necessity for the program.

Some of the leaders left the White House predicting that the administration will get a foreign aid program in this session of Congress. But they would not forecast whether it will be as big as he would like.

The leaders said foreign aid was the principal topic. But they said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gave them a run-down on latest developments not only in the Far East—the area emphasized most strongly in the aid bill—but also on Europe. They would not go into details of Dulles' remarks.

Concerning foreign aid House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin (Mass.) said he thinks "they'll get what they need because they've demonstrated that until we get peace and stability in the world we've got to spend for a while."

Chairman Walter F. George (D-Ga.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee agreed that Congress will continue foreign aid. But he said he doesn't know exactly what the program's final form may be.

Speaker Sam Rayburn, asked whether the administration did a good sales job, said the briefers "handled themselves very well."

Among those at the briefing was Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) who has dissented from Mr. Eisenhower's decision to sound out the possibility of bilateral talks with Communist China.

Among members of the administration "team" at the conference were foreign aid chief Harold E. Stassen and Kohn B. Hollister who becomes director of the International Cooperation Administration.

Dulles conferred Monday with Assistant Secretary Walter S. Robertson and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who returned from Formosa last weekend. Those two will report to Mr. Eisenhower this afternoon.

Mr. Eisenhower's request of $3,530,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 is about 700 million dollars above the amount Congress voted for the current fiscal year.

When he sent his new recommendations to Congress April 20 the general reaction among both Republicans and Democrats was that he was asking too much, although the program lays increased stress on trouble spots in Asia.

Hence Mr. Eisenhower's biggest selling job is to convince Congress it should approve a larger sum than it did a year ago.

Indict Dentist
In GI Wife's Death

MINNEAPOLIS — Dr. A. Arnold Axilrod, a 49-year-old married dentist, was to be arraigned today on charges of strangling a young soldier's wife who accused him of making her pregnant.

A Hennepin county grand jury returned the first degree murder indictment against Axilrod Monday.

Axilrod was accused of taking 21-year-old Mrs. Mary Moonen on a car ride April 22, strangling her, and leaving her body in an alley.

Axilrod has admitted he took Mrs. Moonen for the ride. But he said he became "boiling mad" at her charges that he drugged her in his office and made her pregnant. He "blacked out," Axilrod said, and didn't know what happened to his accuser.

Mrs. Moonen's 28-year-old husband, Mathias, was given a 30-day furlough to return from duty in Korea.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Monkeys Are Unsung Heroes Of Salk Vaccine; U. S. Diplomats At Dangerous Odds Over Indo-China; French Bunking May Send Remainder Of Indo-China Down Communist Drain.

WASHINGTON, — Unsung hero of the Salk saga is the rhesus monkey of India, a flabby-jawed little fellow with a short tail. A friend of the people who monkey around in medical laboratories, he's helped more than once to crack a tough research problem.

Without the rhesus monkey, in fact, there might be no Salk vaccine today.

Actually it was Harvard's Dr. John F. Enders who in 1951 paved the way for the Salk vaccine's development by discovering that polio could be grown in a culture composed chiefly of chopped-up monkey's kidneys. Later it was found that the Indian rhesus was the most suitable applicant for the honor.

Today, Dr. Enders is little remembered in the midst of all the publicity for Dr. Salk. Nor has anyone proposed an awarded to the rhesus for his important role in the conquest of dread polio.

With no home-grown monkeys and an urgent need for the vaccine, we are at the mercy of India for our monkey supply. This almost caused a crisis last month when American animal welfare groups raised an outcry over the treatment the rhesus was getting from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Sympathizing, India halted shipments, but later resumed them after assuring herself that the National Foundation was acting humanely.

Meanwhile, the animal welfare groups are keeping an eye on things, even to the point of meeting each plane as it wings in from India with its anthropoid passengers aboard.

To inoculate all Americans up to 21 years of age will require about 60,000 monkeys. The going rate is about $30 per monkey. In other words the 60,000 will cost some $1,800,000—a lot of monkey business in any man's language.

Heretofore the job of procuring monkey for vaccine production has been done by the National Foundation, which runs a monkey motel at Bluffton, S. C., with accommodations for 6,000 guests.

Now, however, commercial producers of the vaccine will step into the picture with monkey farms of their own. They hope to speed Salk vaccine production — if no one throws a monkey wrench into the works.

VIETNAM GOING COMMUNIST

While American politicians and the rest of the public have been worrying about some islands off the coast of China so small they don't show on any map, a sizable chunk of southeast Asia once described by Eisenhower as vital, is about to go down the Communist drain.

It is southern Vietnam—the most important part of Indo-China left free after the Geneva conference bowed to the Reds and surrendered the north.

This time, Vietnam is going down the drain not because of Communist invasion but because of bungling, neglect, religious rivalry and Franco-American bickering. All the Communists have to do is sit on the sidelines and applaud our bonehead plays.

Here are inside details of what's happening in this tiny, war-weary country which Eisenhower once described as vital to the free world.

Prime Minister Ngo Dinh Diem of Vietnam is a strong anti-Communist, an honest leader, a strong Catholic, but he is also anti-French. Opposed to him are not only certain Buddhist sects but the colonial office in Paris—long noted for its old-fashioned policies and for being out of step with the French people.

Opposition to Premier Diem is probably more economic than religious, though the two are combined. For years the Buddhist sects which now oppose him have drawn their chief revenue from the river pirates and the brothels of Saigon, sometimes called the Paris of the Orient.

This revenue is what also helps support Emperor Bao Dai in style on the French Riviera.

REFORM LEADER

Premier Diem is unalterably opposed to these vice regimes. He is a new type of vigorous reform leader who wants to bring a new era to Indo-China. Hitherto he has had the backing of Secretary of State Dulles, who incidentally has had his backbone stiffened by Cardinal Spellman. For not only are there a great many Catholics in Vietnam, but also about a million refugees in the Communist North Indo-China trying to get into free southern Vietnam.

Opposing Dulles, however, is his special ambassador, Gen. Joe Lawton Collins, sent to Indo-China to try to save the rapidly deteriorating situation.

Collins, a great combat general, the man who captured Cherbourg and a sincere, though unskilled diplomat, has been sold a bill of goods by the French that Premier Diem must be dumped. No religious question is involved as far as Collins is concerned, because Collins himself is a Catholic. The basic issue is the return of French colonialism.

Many members of the American embassy staff in Vietnam vigorously disagree with General Collins. General Collins, however, seems to be won over by the French, seems to feel that Premier Diem is too strait-laced to deal with the kind of enemies who are trying to undermine him. One cable he sent to Washington reported that Diem did not know how to deal with venal people.

Meanwhile Premier Diem is not permitted by the French to use his army of 140,000 men to subdue a rebellion started by the Binh Xuyen Buddhist sect of former river pirates which has an army of only 4,000. The two other sects opposing him can muster only 9,000 men and could be handled easily if the French would let Diem move.

Note 1 — Donald Heath, former U. S. ambassador, was replaced chiefly because the State Department feared he didn't stand up against the French. But today General Collins, tough combat officer that he is, has succumbed to his wartime associate, Gen. Paul Ely, the French high commissioner.

Note 2 — General Eisenhower, addressing the governors conference in Seattle in the summer of 1953 stated: "Now, let us assume that we have lost Indo-China. If Indo-China goes, several things happen right away. The KRA peninsula, the last little bit of land hanging on down there, would be scarcely defensible. The tin and tungsten that we so value from that area would cease coming. All India would be outflanked. Burma would be in no position for defense."

Chou's Peace Pigeon

Editorial — By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai's offer to negotiate with the United States over tensions in the Formosa area has about it something of the spirit of fabled old-time wild west justice:

"Let's give 'em a fair trial and hang 'em."

As pieced together from his two separate statements on this matter, Chou's viewpoint toward Formosan discussions could be summarized thus:

Red China doesn't want war with the United States, it would like to talk to U. S. officials about relaxing tensions in the Far East and specifically in the Formosa area, but it has no intention of abandoning its plan of "liberating" that island from Chinese Nationalist control.

As one correspondent at the Bandung conference put it, Chou by adding this tough proviso managed very quickly to shoot down his own peace pigeon.

There appears to be a question in the minds of experts on the Far East scene as to why Chou did it.

The most charitable view is that he made his original offer to negotiate, in genuine good faith, and threw in the proviso only after the United States responded by setting up a series of stiff conditions of its own—including insistence on Nationalist China's representatives at the bargaining table.

The other view is that a close inspection of Chou's first remarks shows that he never said a thing about negotiating the future status of Formosa. He simply said he was willing to talk about reducing tension in the area which could mean—for him—withdrawal of U. S. Naval forces protecting the island and threatening defense of Quemoy and Matsu.

By this view, there was nothing inconsistent when Chou later added that Red China would not yield its plan to grab Formosa.

If this is the unshakable determination of Chou and his government, then clearly there is nothing at all to negotiate.

This country has talked earnestly of prospects for a cease-fire in the Formosa Straits. Yet all our tentative hopes have been based on the idea that if we made some concessions toward the peaceful evacuation of Quemoy and Matsu, Red China would in turn agree to give up use of force in pressing its claims for Formosa itself.

Secretary of State Dulles had made it thoroughly plain we are not asking the Reds to yield their legal claims to the island.

If it is merely these that Chou wants to preserve at this time, if his notion of "easing

Avert Gary School Teachers' Strike

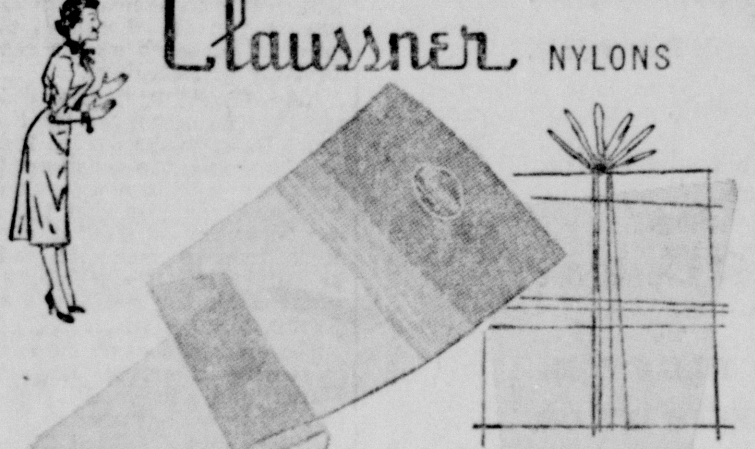

GARY, Ind. (AP)—A school teachers' strike which threatened to close 25 public schools today was averted by a last-minute truce Monday night.

A walkout would have affected about 30,800 elementary and high school students.

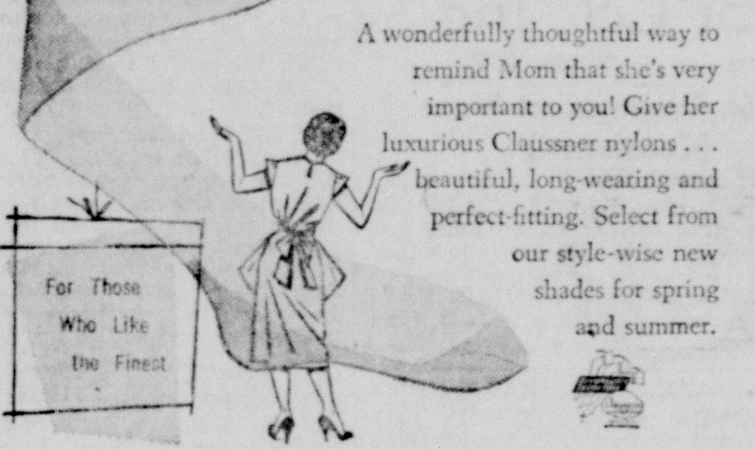

Union officials said 500 of its 600 members had approved the strike. The union is demanding a $450-a-year salary increase for all teachers.

Committee OK's Surplus Food for Jobless Miners

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Agriculture committee today approved a bill to process surplus government grain into flour and cereals and give it to jobless coal miners and other needy families.

The program would be restricted to areas where the Labor Department has reported that unemployment exceeds 6 per cent. Committee aides said there now are 143 such areas.

The Agriculture Department would donate the grains and pay for transportation and processing charges. It would be reimbursed for all costs by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which would turn the wheat flour, corn meal or oatmeal or other product, in excess of the state relief agencies upon request from the governor of the state.

The committee earlier had considered legislation which would have required the Agriculture Department to use farm price support funds to absorb the cost of the give-away program. The Agriculture Department had opposed that approach.

Testifying before the committee, Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse said the department did not want to be responsible for handling grain give-aways for relief purposes.

Morse also made it clear that the department feared that grain products could not be distributed by any federal agency without interfering with normal marketing channels. He said there is a big difference between donations of grain products and the department's present surplus distribution program which is limited to cheese, butter, dried skim milk, beans, rice, and shortening.

It takes more than 100,000 union-management contracts to set the wages and other conditions of employment for 15 million workers in the United States.

Carney Says Navy Progresses in Nuclear Ships
Admiral Answers Criticisms by Two Senators
WASHINGTON (UP)—The U. S. fleet will boast a "variety of types" of nuclear-powered warships within 10 years.
The Navy, already making "great progress" with nuclear submarines, now is "on the threshold of developing advanced atomic reactors for large surface ships."
Adm. Robert B. Carney, chief of naval operations, made those statements today to the United Press in written answers to questions. Questions were submitted following congressional criticism that the Navy was "dragging its feet" in converting to nuclear propulsion and was "a little slow" in developing new weapons for the Nautilus class of atomic submarine.
The criticisms came respectively from Sens. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) and Clinton P. Anderson (D-MN).
Carney said President Eisenhower's plan for a nuclear powered merchant ship to roam the world in peaceful commerce "will also open the way for the application of nuclear power to military craft of comparable size and comparable speed."
Five Different Reactors
Other Navy officers disclosed that the Navy now has under development five different types of atomic reactors designed for both submarines and surface ships.
These officers said the Nautilus carries "all modern" weapons. But they refused to comment on whether they included missiles and atomic weapons. The Nautilus is understood to have six torpedo tubes which will fire a new type homing torpedo. However, delivery of this projectile to the Navy has been slow.
Carney said there still are "knotty technical problems" but he was confident "our scientists and engineers will whip those problems" and bring about nuclear powered warships.
"No specific date can be fixed for a fleet in which nuclear power will be commonplace although, in the submarine field, we are making great progress now," Carney said. "I believe that in a decade from now there will be a variety of types of ships in the fleet operating with nuclear power."
"Threshold of Feasibility"
The Navy, he said, is "on the threshold of feasibility" with regard to nuclear powered ships. He called such power "one of the great significant maritime developments" and said "we must press to master it and harness it."
The Navy's spokesmen did not identify the five types of atomic reactor under development.
Jackson, in criticizing alleged Navy slowness in shifting to atomic propulsion, said it was "regrettable" that five conventional submarines were sought in the fiscal 1956 budget. The Navy said those submarines "will not become obsolete during their normal life span." It said they were needed while nuclear-powered submarines are "still in the development stage."

Many a politician has made the mistake of thinking he could start a landslide by slinging mud.

Novelist William Faulkner, Tennessee Williams Win Second Pulitzer Awards

NEW YORK (AP) — William Faulkner and Tennessee Williams, two writers who have captured many of the top writing awards of the last decade, Monday received Pulitzer prizes.

Faulkner won the prize for "A Fable," the novel of trench life in World War I which took him nine years to write.

Williams won his second Pulitzer prize for the play "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof," a drama about a twisted Mississippi plantation family.

The 1955 Pulitzer prizes were announced Monday by President Grayson Kirk of Columbia University. They were awarded by the university's trustees on the recommendation of the advisory board on Pulitzer prizes.

Second Award For Faulkner
Faulkner won the Nobel prize for literature in 1949 after publishing such novels as "Sanctuary" and "Intruder In The Dust." Williams won his first Pulitzer Prize in 1948 for "Streetcar Named Desire," the play that brought him world-wide fame.

Other winners of 1955 Pulitzer prizes included Gian-Carlo Menotti who received the award for music in his opera "The Saint of Bleeker Street." Menotti won the 1950 Pulitzer award for his opera, "The Consul."

The prize for "disinterested and meritorious" public service by a newspaper went to the Columbus, Ga., Ledger and Sunday Ledger-Enquirer for "its complete news coverage and fearless editorial attack on widespread corruption in Phenix City, Ala."

Anthony Lewis of the Washington, D. C., Daily News, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, received the Pulitzer Prize for national reporting. He was awarded the honor for a series of stories that brought about the restoration to duty of Abraham Chasnov, who had been dismissed by the Navy Department as a security risk.

International Reporting Award
Harrison E. Salisbury of the New York Times won the 1955 prize for international reporting. The award was based on his series of stories, "Russia Re-Viewed," growing out of his six years as a postwar Moscow correspondent.

Mrs. Caro Brown of the Alice, Tex., Daily Echo won the prize for local reporting under the pressure of deadline time. Her prize-winning series dealt with a one-man political deal in Duval County, Tex.

The award for local reporting with no deadline pressure went to Roland Kenneth Towery of the Cuero, Tex., Record for his series of exclusive stories exposing a scandal in the administration of the veterans land program in Texas.

Royce Howes of the Detroit Free Press won the Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing. The judges said the award-winning editorial "impartially and clearly analyzes the responsibility of both labor and management for a local union's management for a strike in July, 1954."

Daniel R. Fitzpatrick was awarded the prize for editorial cartoons. His cartoon, entitled "How Would Another Mistake Help?" shows Uncle Sam pondering whether to waste his black mark on the French Mistake in Indochina. Fitzpatrick won another Pulitzer Prize in 1926. He is on the staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"Tragedy In The Surf"
John L. Gaunt Jr., of the Los Angeles Times, won the news photography prize for his picture "Tragedy In The Surf" showing an anguished couple whose child had been drowned in the ocean.

The prize for history went to Paul Horgan of Roswell, N. M., for his "Great River, The Rio Grande In North American History." The biography prize was awarded to William S. White for "The Taft Story," a biography of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. White is Washington correspondent for the New York Times.

Wallace Stevens won the poetry award for his book of collected poems. Stevens is vice-president of the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Company. The awards board also announced that the $1,500 Pulitzer art scholarship, 25, of Kansas City, Mo., presently a New York art student.

Ike Discusses Soil Work with Farm Editors

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today told a group of farm editors he decided years ago to buy a farm and leave the soil in better condition than he found it.

The President talked soil conservation after one of the members of the Agricultural Editors Assn. brought up the name of the President's brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, as a conservation proponent.

Mr. Eisenhower said his brother, now president of Pennsylvania State University, "interested me" in conservation matters years ago. He said he made a decision to buy a farm and leave the soil in better condition than when he bought it, in accord with best conservation principles.

The President said he recently had a scientific survey made of his Gettysburg farm and was told three-fourths of the top soil has been washed away as a result of many years of abuse from former owners.

The farm editors laughed when the President indicated it should be easy to improve the Gettysburg land because it is in such bad shape. The editors from 40 publications with a circulation of 22 million met briefly with the President in the rose garden.

Banker Leaves More Than Million To U. I., Students

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — The will of the late Fred S. Bailey, president of the Champaign National Bank, bequeaths more than a million dollars to the University of Illinois and its students. The will was filed for probate Monday.

The petition for probate listed the value of the Bailey estate as "in excess of one million dollars." The will made specific bequests to three Champaign churches, a Bradford, Mass., junior college, three long-time employees of the bank, and a tenant on the Bailey farm.

The junior college was bequeathed $5,000 in memory of Bailey's two sisters. The remainder of the estate was willed to a "perpetual trust with two thirds of the income to the University YMCA to provide scholarships for 'worthy moral students' of the U. of I.; and one third to the university to establish the "Bailey memorial chair of money, banking and finance" and employing "distinguished" teachers in those fields.

Terror-Stricken Boy, 8, is Killed By Train on Trestle

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — A terror-stricken 8-year-old boy, trapped on a railroad trestle, was killed by a speeding train Monday although one step to the side could have saved him.

William Vancil and his twin sister, Joan, wandered away from a playground and climbed on to the railroad trestle.

They started to run when they saw the speeding Rock Island Rocket bearing down on them.

The children apparently didn't realize they could escape merely by stepping to a clear track on the trestle.

Joan managed to run to the end of the trestle and throw herself down a 10-foot embankment. Her brother was only a few steps behind when the train hit him.

The train's engineer, Roy Vendt, Bureau, Ill., said he went too fast to stop in time. The "big four" of U. S. exports are industrial machinery, automobiles, grains and cotton. They account for approximately 40 percent of the total value of the goods we sell abroad.

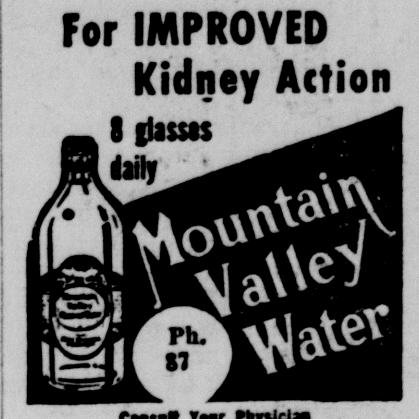

Mamie Ordered to 'Take It Easy,' Eisenhower Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Monday night that Mrs. Eisenhower's doctor "has ordered her to take it easy for a while."

The President expressed to the nation's governors and their wives Mrs. Eisenhower's "deep regret that she couldn't come" to a banquet given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower at the governors' conference.

The White House had announced Saturday that Mrs. Eisenhower would cancel her attendance at the banquet and all other social engagements this week because her physician felt she had not sufficiently recovered from her recent bout with the flu.

DEATH OF A LEGEND

By WILL HENRY

Copyright 1954 by Will Henry. Used by arrangement

THE STORY: Thirteen horsemen headed by Jesse James, have ridden into Liberty, Mo., toward the Clay County Savings & Loan Association. Their arrival was observed by 19-year-old George (Jolly) Wynmore, a student of William Jewel College.

XI

Three of the horsemen detached themselves from the gesturing, quick-talking group. They rode only a short way, then separated and took up independent stations several hundred feet from the bank. The remaining 10 rode directly to the bank. Before its doors, they split up. Three rode away along the street to the north, three along the street to the west. Neither of these groups took up a station, but continued to wheel their mounts back and forth along the storefronts facing the square, clearly on the qui vive for the first move of interference from patron or proprietor of the opening business establishments.

The original three horsemen now dismounted, threw their reins over the bank's hitching rail, moved toward the waiting doors. There, the third man stopped, posting himself in a lookout position commanding approach to the bank entrance from either direction. The other two, one of them the big man who had spoken so pleasantly to George, hurried into the building.

Inside, the two strangers paused, returning the questioning looks of Mr. Greenup Bird and his worthy scion.

Mr. Greenup Bird later remembered that the pair's official greeter was a fine-looking, six-foot man of scholarly address. "Are you open for business, good sirs?"

"Why yes," stammered the elder Bird. "Yes, of course. Name your pleasure, gentlemen."

The senior cashier was understandably new to the type of business he was inviting. He grew old to it rapidly.

Jesse moved across the floor to the cashier's counter. Where the big pistol came from, Mr. Greenup Bird never could remember. He remembered distinctly, however, that it wound up probing the region of his right temple.

"All right," said Jesse unheatedly. "Open the vault, and don't drag your feet about it or I'll blow your head off."

Cashier Bird was an astute banker, had a quick head for clear figures. He opened the vault.

Meanwhile, Cole had implanted his gun in the younger Bird's shrinking belly, and now backed him toward the vault, following his father and Jesse. Inside the vault, the shelves were admirably cleaned. Both captive Birds watched helplessly as the smaller man swept bonds, greenbacks and minted coins alike into the capacious maw of the Missouri wheatsack which the bigger outlaw had produced from beneath his long coat.

With the sack full, the two bandits stopped outside the vault. The larger doffed his hat to the elder Bird, who had followed them out of the vault.

"A pleasant good morning, sir. Thank you for your courtesy."

With that, he and the bulging wheatsack were on their way to the door. But his smaller companion, pausing, eyed the indignant cashier narrowly. In his subsequent deposition, Bird avowed that the following instruction came with a crooked grin and a notably nervous eyeblink.

"All birds should be caged," philosophized the small gunman. "Get back inside the vault, Mr. Bird, and step to it!"

Mr. Bird stepped to it. Joining his son in the vault, he heard the slam of its door, saw the accompanying departure of the slender bandit from behind its heavy grill-work.

The spring lock on the vault door had failed to catch in the hurried slamming.

Cole was still typing the wheatsack to his saddlehorn, and Frank was still waiting for Jesse outside the bank entrance, when Mr. Greenup Bird's outraged cries for aid and succor began.

Cole had the sack adjusted to his unhurried liking. By the same time Frank and Jesse had found stirrup and were mounted. Also by the same time, the atmosphere on the northwest corner of Liberty's square was beginning to whistle a bit.

Several quick-thinking individuals among the astonished citizenry had found firearms.

But Jesse had not failed to apply his usual care in such professional matters. His men were well drilled in the parts each had been assigned in the master plan.

The three outflung pickets took off in as many directions, yelling and firing their revolvers to draw attention off the main pack. The two groups of patrolling guerrillas raced their horses back and forth along the storefronts, pouring a hail of high-aimed lead into them which had Liberty's shopkeepers sweeping up glass for a week. Under the crash and confusion of this galloping destruction, Jesse, Frank and Cole headed their mounts around the square in the identical direction whence they had come not five minutes before.

George Wynmore, sole firsthand eyewitness to the original approach of the three outlaw leaders, was still standing on his cross-street corner. As the trio of fleeing bandits thundered back toward him, he lost sudden interest in the whole proceedings.

Turning, he began to run. One of the three horsemen shot him twice through the back as he ran. He fell immediately, rolled over, came halfway to his knees, still clutching the leather-throated pack of his schoolbooks. The second wave of guerrilla horsemen, running up on iron-shod heels of the first, finishing the job.

Powell Bill Seeks To Restore Surplus Food To the Needy

State Rep. Paul Powell of Vienna has introduced a resolution in the house that seeks to restore the distribution of federal surplus commodities to unemployed coal miners and other needy persons by the Illinois Public Aid Commission.

"If all the funds we are appropriating to the Illinois Public Aid commission are insufficient to enable it to perform its job satisfactorily, the IPAC should come before us and correctly state its needed appropriations," the resolution says. "And if it has sufficient funds, we urgently request the IPAC to perform its obligations and rescind its decision . . . and we respectfully request Gov. Stratton to assemble all available transportation at the service of the various agencies under his direction and divert their use to alleviate the conditions which threaten to prevent thousands of persons from obtaining nourishing foods."

The resolution points out that the IPAC was organized for the sole purpose of rendering aid to the unfortunate, that one of its most beneficial programs has been the distribution of surplus federal commodities which are an outright and that the general assembly has been generous with the requests of the IPAC for funds.

Plan Arctic Subway In Greenland

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said today it will send a 172-man expedition to the Greenland ice cap this summer to see if it is possible to build an "arctic subway" there.

The purpose of such a subway would be to avoid problems of weather, navigation, and trail-marking in surface travel about the 700,000 square-mile Arctic ice cap.

Should ice subways become a reality, they might bring into being an underground city of ice that would rival the dreams of a science fiction writer.

The U. S. Army Corps already has constructed houses under the ice in Greenland.

Archie Moore Is Impressive in Win Over Valdes

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore was praised by the International Boxing Club today as a "must" challenger for the heavyweights crown in September because of his impressive 15-round victory over big Nino Valdes of Cuba here Monday night.

But Valdes' manager, Bobby Gleason, charged a "double cross" by the IBC and a wrong decision by referee Jim Braddock.

"They used this fight to get Nino out of the heavyweight picture," he declared angrily.

Promoter Jack Kearns claimed the IBC had no connection with the Moore-Valdes brawl, staged at twilight before 10,800 fans in Cushman Field. However, Truman Gibson of Chicago, executive secretary of the IBC, was at the ring-side.

Gibson said after the bout, "Moore's showing tonight was so impressive that the heavyweight champion must defend against him possibly at New York in September."

The bout, which started shortly before sunset, drew $102,678—considerably less than promoter Kearns had expected. It was neither televised nor broadcast.

Superior Stamina
It was a major victory for 38-year-old Moore, who had been pronounced "washed up" by California physicians. They claimed he had a heart ailment and would not permit him to fight in the state.

Las Vegas doctors said his heart was okay, and Archie's performance apparently upheld their diagnosis.

His superior stamina and snapper punches enabled him to register a return-bout triumph over big Nino, who was generally ranked as top contender for the heavyweight crown.

Mustache Archie had won a 10-round decision over Valdes in their previous bout at St. Louis two years ago, but Nino was supposed to have improved much since then, whereas Moore was believed by many experts to have started down the toboggan.

Braddock, former heavyweight champion and sole judge of the bout, favored Moore on a round basis, 8-5-2. The United Press had Archie ahead, 8-6-1.

To the spectators Moore seemed fast against the somewhat awkward, 6-foot-3 Cuban, but Archie was dissatisfied with his own speed. He said, "I weighed too much to be fast." He weighed 190 pounds, the heaviest of his career. Valdes registered 209½.

Cubs Sweep Three-Game Series from Phillies; Pirates Trip Cards, 5-1

The second-place Chicago Cubs are being tagged the "surprise team" of 1955 so far but they're certainly no surprise to Manager Stan Hack, who drew a lot of horse laughs in the spring when he predicted they might wind up in first division.

Last season, for example, the Cubs didn't win a game in Philadelphia, but Monday night they swept their three-game series with the Phillies by winning a game that was suspended Sunday, 4-2, and then beating Robin Roberts, 2-1, in the regular scheduled contest.

Warren Hacker, making his first appearance on the mound since pulling a hamstring muscle in his leg, April 24, closed out the suspended game by pitching the ninth inning and then kept right on going with a fine four-hit effort in the regulation game.

Greengrass Raps Hacker
Outfielder Jim Greengrass, who came to the Phillies from the Red Sox Saturday, was the only man who gave Hacker any trouble. He collected the only hit off the Cub knuckleballer in the ninth inning of the abbreviated tussle and then rapped him for three more in the regular game.

In the suspended game, Gene Baker's seventh inning homer off Jack Meyer snapped a 2-all tie and turned out to be the clincher. In the regular game, Eddie Miksis' single on the heels of Doc Fondy's third inning double chased the winning run home. Ernie Banks' fourth homer gave Chicago its first run in the second inning but that was matched by Del Ennis' fourth homer in the bottom of the frame.

Carl Furillo smashed his eighth home run with one man on in the 12th inning to break up a tense pitching duel between Carl Erskine and Gene Conley and gave Brooklyn a 2-0 triumph over Milwaukee.

Until the 12th, Conley had yielded only three hits but in that inning he walked Jackie Robinson with one out and then yielded the home run to Furillo. Erskine allowed six hits and struck out six in registering his fourth victory without a setback. The triumph gave Brooklyn a six-game lead in the National League.

Bob Purkey, steadily developing into Pittsburgh's No. 1 pitcher, paced the Pirates to a 5-1 victory over the Cardinals. In registering his second victory in less than a week, the 23-year-old Purkey, who won only three games all last season, scattered seven hits and collected three homers. Harvey Had-dix was the loser.

The Giants and Redlegs weren't scheduled.

Wynn Wins First
Early Wynn, one of Cleveland's big three, finally won his first game, beating the Red Sox, 4-2, with a six-hit effort. The Indians, held to four hits by loser Russ Kemmerer, Skinny Brown and Tom Hurd, won the game in the first inning on a double by Al Smith, a walk and Dave Pope's homer.

Detroit took possession of second place behind the pace-setting Indians with a 7-1 victory over the Yankees, who tumbled to fourth place behind the idle White Sox.

Steve Gromek held New York to six hits in registering the 17th win of his career over the Yankees against 10 defeats. Bob Zeisler started for the Yankees and gave up two runs, enough to lose the game, in the first inning on Harvey Kuenn's single, a walk and Ferris Fain's double.

In the only other game scheduled Roy Sievers and Jim Busby each smashed two homers to lead Washington to a 12-1 victory over Kansas City. Southpaw Johnny Schmitz gave up 12 hits, including a homer to Gus Zernial but was an easy winner.

What's all this talk about "Price Class!"

It gets to be a little confusing—this talk about what "price class" a car is in. This new Dodge is making a clean sweep in every price field!

Owners who are used to paying a thousand dollars more for a car find that money can't buy more luxury, more exciting features and beauty than in the dashing Custom Royal Lancer shown above. It's up to 9 inches longer than competitive models costing more!

And owners of so-called "low-priced cars" are finding that a new Dodge, with all its dashing length and flashing style, can be theirs for only a few dollars a month more than any of the small cars—up to 19 inches shorter and far less exciting!

In fact, the Dodge Coronet 4-door shown below actually costs less than some models in the lowest price class. So let yourself go. Travel first class in the car that's knocking "price class" into a cocked hat.

Mother Barricades Herself in Home, Threatens to Shoot Federal Marshals

BETHEL, Vt. —A 44-year-old mother of three children barricaded herself in her home today and threatened to shoot federal marshals who had orders to take her to Washington, D. C., for mental tests.

The woman, Mrs. Lucille S. Miller, was free in $1,000 bail on charges of advising youths not to register under the Selective Service Act.

Marshal Dewey Perry, Deputy Marshal Jack Breen and Matron Ester Anderson arrived at her frame, two-story home.

Mrs. Miller refused to admit them and talked to the three thru a locked screen door.

She was armed with a Winchester 30-06 rifle and "plenty of ammunition."

She told the United Press by telephone: "I wouldn't shoot out of the building at them, but I will if they try to enter my house."

She said Perry read a telegram from the Justice Department in Washington ordering him to deliver Mrs. Miller to St. Elizabeth's hospital, Washington. The telegram was dated April 28, she said.

Mrs. Miller's husband, her 74-year-old mother, a local reporter, her three children and a small niece were in the house with her. Mrs. Miller said the marshals "are just sitting around outside."

"They've threatened to get the Army but I don't care," she said. On April 18, Federal Judge Ernest W. Gibson ruled that Mrs. Miller was suffering from manic depression reaction. He held she was not capable of properly aiding in her defense and placed her in the custody of the U. S. attorney general.

Mrs. Miller had been indicted for writing letters to youths advising them not to register for the draft.

She said she wanted a quick trial on the charge and didn't want to be committed to a "booby hatch."

She claimed she is "anti-Communist" and "favors a big volunteer Army with good pay," as against selective services, which she claimed is unconstitutional.

Housing Chief Blasts Critics Of Program

WASHINGTON — Federal housing chief Albert M. Cole today blasted critics who would break up the government's Housing and Home Finance Agency into several separate parts and make one of those parts—the Federal Housing Administration—a private corporation.

The break-up of HHFA, which is the parent agency for most of the government's housing activities, was recommended in a task force report to the Hoover Commission on Government Organization. The commission itself did not adopt the proposal.

In a speech to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce 43rd annual meeting, Cole said some partisans "have redoubled their efforts to drive a wedge into the housing agency, break it into fragments and insulate their particular sectors against governmental coordination or responsibility."

He said they believe their interests would be better served "by a return to the philosophy of every man for himself."

Operate Without Gov't Funds
Cole also took exception to the commission's recommendation that FHA be reorganized so that it would not have to call on the government for funds. He said FHA always has operated without calling on government funds, but if this recommendation means making it into a private corporation it would "remove a keystone from the very structure of the federal housing policy itself" and render part of President Eisenhower's housing program inoperative.

If the commission means only that FHA should be reorganized to perfect the system of financing which it already uses, Cole said he would agree.

Harry A. Bullis, chairman of General Mills Inc., told the chamber that business should perhaps blame itself for such government controls as minimum wage and anti-trust laws.

Bullis said such laws might not exist if business had voluntarily shouldered more social responsibilities several decades ago. He said businesses which have taken the lead in adapting to social changes on their own "still continue to be ahead of the government's compulsory legislation."

He suggested that local businesses develop programs to help their communities on education problems, to help their employees improve themselves, and to help with local civic and commercial development projects.

National Society Says TV is Not Harmful to Eyes

NEW YORK — The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness had good news today for television watchers. TV is not harmful to the eyes.

In a pamphlet entitled "Television and Your Eyes," the society said viewers with healthy eyes have nothing to fear if their picture is in clear focus, there is good lighting in the room and they sit at a reasonable distance from the set.

The organization answered five most frequently asked questions by viewers.

1. What is the best light for watching TV? Soft, indirect light with no reflections from the screen.

2. What is the best distance to be from the screen? As far as possible with comfort. The farther away you sit, the less your eye muscles have to work.

3. Does television involve danger from X-ray radiation? No.

4. Is a large screen superior to a small screen? A large screen generally permits more comfortable viewing. However, a large screen in a small room is not recommended.

5. How long should a child watch TV? No set time but frequent and regular rest periods away from the set is important for youngsters.

U. S. May Ditch Playboy Viet Nam Chief of State

WASHINGTON — The United States prepared today to ditch Bao Dai, Viet Nam's playboy chief of state, if necessary to bring order out of chaos in the Indochinese nation.

Informal sources said the United States would cast its solid support behind Premier Ngo Dinh Diem in any final showdown that develops between him and the absentee chief of state now making his headquarters on the French Riviera.

U. S. officials were uncertain when—or if—such a showdown would develop, however.

The American policy was in line with a stand taken by three members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee — Sens. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.).

Mansfield, a Far East expert, warned that "only the Communists will gain" if Diem is ousted. The United States has been behind Diem but France has worked steadily against him.

Mansfield said although the odds are against Diem "he is the only man we have." Thus, he said, "there is no alternative" but to support him.

He said Diem "stands for decent and honest government and an independent Viet Nam," while the forces opposing him have "little concern or downright contempt for what these terms mean."

Smith and Humphrey supported him.

In financial circles a "Tangerine" isn't likely to be a fruit—but is more likely to be the negotiable gold certificate issued by Tangier which circulates throughout Europe.

In the U. S. since 1900 the number of persons 65 and over has quadrupled while the total population has only doubled.

People of the world speak more than 1,000 separate languages or dialects.

The distance driven by cars scrapped in 1925 averaged less than 22,000 miles; in 1945 the average was 81,000 miles.
